

Upper Dolpo Jomsom Trek

Trip Overview

The upper Dolpo Trek takes you to the far western region of Nepal. The Dolpo district lies in the Karnali province. The area is a remote and secluded area of Nepal. Trekking in the Dolpo region can be challenging. There is no proper development of any infrastructure. You can explore the magnificent high Himalayan valleys, rugged trails, and unique culture of distant, far-west Nepal. This can be an experience for a lifetime. The landscape of the Dolpo resembles the Tibetan plateau. Trekking in the Dolpo region gives you an intellectual feeling of being in the wilderness.

The Shey Phokshundo Lake lies in the central part of the region. The lake is also the deepest in Nepal. A large portion of the area is covered by Sheyphokshundo National Park. The national park shelters a variety of flora and fauna. It is also home to endangered flora and fauna. The oldest Shey monastery is also part of this trek. The influence of Tibetan Buddhist culture can be seen in this region and is also the main highlight of this trek. The gorgeous Dhaulagiri and the Churi Himal ranges surround the east, west, and south of the Dolpo region. Thus, the magnificent view of Dhaulagiri, the Chure Himal range, and the snowy peaks are the backdrop throughout the journey.

Trekking in this area compulsorily needs a special kind of permit. Therefore, you cannot travel independently on the trail. The number of teahouses is limited; you may need to carry a tent too. Trekking in this area can be challenging, but it is all worth it when you encounter the Himalayan valleys, quaint Lake Phoshundo, lush vegetation, and the unique culture of this area.

Explore the secluded area of Nepal and get more insights into the diverse culture and vegetation with the Highland Eco Trek.
